Dear Parents,

For many, this year marks your child's final months as a student in elementary school. This is an exciting time for families and students alike as they begin to consider their goals and aspirations for the future. The conversations surrounding a bright future begin with the selection of a high school and identifying the school that will provide the best opportunities. When weighing the benefits of each high school, I encourage you to focus on the Catholic High Schools in Brooklyn and Queens. The value of a Catholic education extends far beyond its academic benefits and has proven to impact student social emotional growth, faith development, and future potential for success.

The most significant component of a Catholic high school is their commitment to fulfilling the mission of guiding students to know and love Christ. Faith is deep-rooted in all components of a Catholic education and the ability to continue to be part of a larger faith community strengthens student's faith relationships. Students can partake in frequent liturgy, schoolwide prayer opportunities, and rigorous religious studies. Engaging with their peers and teachers, discussing religion, and seeing others embracing their faith results in students who are more likely to practice their faith as adults and share it with their future families. Building the faith during the formative high school years is a strong predictor of future religious engagement.

Catholic high schools continue the mission of sharing the love of Christ through service to others. Students are consistently involved in outreach and service projects that promote a sense of connection and responsibility to the community. Students leaving a Catholic high school have been identified as being more likely to be civic minded and community oriented. They are more likely to volunteer and perform service activities as adults. Perhaps the most important difference comes from a higher likelihood of being accepting and respecting diverse views. Catholic education is fostering a spirit within students that will build a brighter future. The world is often full of darkness, but students are given countless opportunities to act as a light for others. Modeling this behavior translates into adults who are more focused on how they can positively impact others within their own community and the global community.

Catholic high schools center their philosophy of education on the whole student; understanding that students have complex needs and every student should be supported to achieve their full potential. It is with this understanding that teachers can encourage students to reach their full academic capabilities. Research has found Catholic high school graduates to have several academic advantages over their public-school counterparts. Higher standardized test scores, including SAT scores are just one metric of success that will impact college choice, scholarship opportunities, and even the ability to manage college level work. Students in Catholic high schools are also more likely to graduate, move on to higher education, and graduate from college. 94% of Catholic high school graduates across the country will pursue higher education. In turn, Catholic high school graduates have a greater earning potential upon graduation.

Catholic education is an opportunity, not only for your child's future, but for the future of our faith and communities. I encourage you to take every opportunity to learn more about these high schools through websites and open houses. There are also extensive scholarship opportunities available to assist students and families.

Grade Eight students who wish to attend a Catholic High School in Fall 2022 need to take the Test for Admission into Catholic High Schools (TACHS) on Saturday, November 6, 2021. For registration and more information visit: www.tachsinfo.com

I offer my best wishes to future graduates and pray that God continues to guide you along life's path. Enjoy the start of a new school year!

In Christ,

Thomas Chadzutko, Ed.D.

Why Choose a Catholic School?

As parents, you want the best for your children. It is because you wish them success in all of life's challenges that Catholic schools are the right choice.

Catholic schools provide an educational program based on religious beliefs and values, enabling your children to grow in their understanding of themselves, their relationship with God and their relationship with others.

Catholic schools promote the education of young people to their full potential; their teachers respect and encourage real learning experiences. Your children acquire knowledge and develop the skills necessary for success in higher educational pursuits and a wide range of careers.

Catholic schools offer a community environment in which your children can discuss and live out the values upon which their education is based. They are encouraged to contribute to society and to assume leadership roles in shaping public attitudes and programs.

In Catholic schools, young people learn to question, to establish confidence in their own good choices in life and to experience the sense of accomplishment stemming from individual achievement and responsibility.
